The main difference between part A and C is strictly connected to CMS functionalities. For movies page I prepared template which allows the user to specify movie title and image as a simple post. The rest of content like move link, rating, styling is added automatically. For event page there is similar template (page of posts) which allows adding event items which include title, text and image as simple posts. After this step everything is parsed and added automatically to events page. The third difference is a contact page which could be easily changed using dashboard. Contact page is a bit more flexible than previously mentioned template it allows to change content entirely.
